STOCK SELLERS WILL WAIVE IMMUNITY

CONVICTED MEN SEEK TO TELL ABOUT OPERATIONS

Offer Made By Benham and Harrison To District Attorney—Moving Vans May Be Patrolled To Federal Court For Pike County Witnesses—Sift Charges of Election Frauds.

William G. Benham and Dwight Harrison, of Columbus, president and secretary of the R. L. Dollings company, stock sellers, have offered to go before the United States grand jury, waive immunity and give all testimony at their disposal. The offer was made in a letter to United States District Attorney Haveth E. Mau from Smith W. Bennett, Columbus, counsel for the two men.

Benham and Harrison were indicted originally on a mail fraud charge. They were convicted and sentenced to twenty years in federal prison. The United States circuit court of appeals set aside the convictions and remanded the cases for new trials. Under the circumstances, the district attorney elected to abandon the first indictments and summoned the grand jury, presumably to return fresh indictments. Benham and Harrison protested against this course.

It was indicated that Mr. Mau is not to grant their wish despite the broad nature of the offer which is submitted "in the interests of justice," as Mr. Bennett phrases it. The two offer "to waive all immunity that may be accorded to them under either the rule of the court or by force of any act of congress in giving their testimony before the grand jury, and in so doing we give to you as district attorney and to your assistants full authority to examine them in detail, ex parte, with regard to all of the transactions which may possibly be involved in any contemplated indictment."

Back of the move is a plea to show that subsequent developments prove that Benham and Harrison were not guilty of misrepresentations in the sale of the stock of the Phoenix Portland Cement company of Ohio, the specific case used against Benham and Harrison.

Subpoenas have been served on 130 residents of Pike county for their appearance before the grand jury in connection with the Dollings and the Pike county election fraud cases.

United States Marshal Stanley Borthwick and Deputy Marshals Harvey Garrett and Forbes Lampman have been in Pike county for nearly a week serving the subpoenas.

Possibility of a common, large moving van being pressed into federal service was intimated by Marshal Borthwick, following conferences with several of his deputies who had just returned from Pike county.

According to Borthwick, few of the persons residing in Pike county are acquainted with federal courts and their practices. The hands of justice as meted out by these tribunals has rarely entered their confines. They are acquainted with justices of the peace, the sheriff and common pleas courts, but federal prosecutions are new, unheard of things.

Consequently, the persons for whom the subpoenas were issued—wanted to appear before the grand jury in Columbus to tell what they know of the practices of politicians in their communities to make sure their elections, as alleged in complaints to federal officials—were not harmoniously in accord with the plan of leaving their work to appear in a strange judicial tribunal in the Capital City.

Deputies reported that they could find most of the persons named on the writs in their possession, but that these same inhabitants of the towns and hillsides of the county were loath to place much importance on the documents and were free in refusing to comply with the mandates of the Columbus courts. Some, of course, they said, were willing enough, but many of the 130 potential witnesses paid little attention to the representatives of the marshal's office.

It may become necessary, therefore, says Borthwick, to send a moving van, or perhaps several of them, to Pike county, accompanied by a small army of deputies to "bring in" these persons who are supposed to know something about the frauds which are alleged to have been perpetrated in the county more than a year ago.

"The grand jury wants to ask these people questions and I have been ordered to inform these persons to appear and to make every effort to have them here," Borthwick declared.

"They may object because they are not acquainted with federal courts; they may refuse to come because of other dictates, but if there is any possibility of getting them here, I'll have them—even if I have to send moving vans for them."

BOY INJURED WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Merle Thomas Had Narrow Escape From Death in Front of Hotel.

That running in and out between automobiles by young boys is a dangerous practice was demonstrated again last Saturday when Merle, the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, of Town street, darted out into the street between parked machines in front of the American hotel, and was knocked down by a high powered car driven by Dennison Burt, of Monroe, Michigan. The fender of the car is all that saved the boy's life. He was thrown under the car and the driver instantly applied his emergency brake, and the machine came to a standstill with the right hind wheel holding the boy's foot like a vise. A number of men were called upon to push the car back to release the child's foot. The boy was taken into the hotel and laid on the office table. Blood was oozing from his ears and his head was badly lacerated. Dr. D. V. Courtright gave the boy first aid and he was later taken by the physician to his home. Mr. Burt was exonerated from all blame. The boy's condition today is not so good, but it is thought that he will recover.

SHOT HIMSELF BECAUSE OF ILL HEALTH

Sherman Roy Hoffman Was Desperate and Ended His Life in Wood Shed.

Sherman Roy Hoffman, single, a farm hand on the Wegerly farm in Washington township was found dead shot thru the heart Saturday night about 10:30 o'clock. He was found by his brother, Seymour Hoffman, on the latter's arrival home from a shopping trip to this city.

The young man made his home with his brother. The latter, accompanied by his wife left home early in the evening and thought he was also coming to town. When they arrived home they found a gun case on the table in the sitting room and they also found their dog in the same room. The dog was always left in the woodshed when they left home, and they were surprised to find the animal welcoming them when they entered the house.

Taking the dog out to the shed to lock him up for the night Mr. Hoffman found his brother dead, sitting in the woodshed with the gun lying across his lap. The man had evidently shot himself several hours before. The trigger had evidently been pulled by his thumb, the muzzle of the gun. It is thought, was held to his left breast by his left hand, as this member was powder burnt. The instrument of death, was a pump gun and three loaded shells were still in the magazine.

The only reason advanced for the suicide is the fact that he had been in ill health, suffering from the leakage of the heart. Last Tuesday he was overcome while cutting corn and when he returned from the field, he told his brother that corn cutting was too much for him and he was told he could do some lighter work about the farm.

The dead man knew about his exact physical condition from the fact that he had been turned down by a medical examiner when he applied for an insurance policy about a year ago. About six months ago, he was accepted as a risk in the Lutheran Brotherhood Insurance company for the sum of $500. His continued ill health seemed to prey on his mind. He was of a very quiet manner and disposition and wanted to do his part in making a hand on the farm, and not being able to do so led him to take his own life.

The deceased was born in Deercreek township, January 24, 1904. He was a son of Enoch and Emma Alice Mason Hoffman. He leaves his father, six sisters and one brother. They are Mrs. Ray McCouan, Roxabel; Mrs. H. W. Florence, of Jackson township; Mrs. Fred Congrove, of Laurelville; Mrs. Nora Davis, of Columbus; Miss Bessie Hoffman, of this city; Miss Mabel Hoffman, of Chillicothe, and Seymour Hoffman, of Washington township.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday at the home of his brother, Seymour Hoffman at 12:30 o'clock Standard time. Rev. G. J. Troutman will officiate. Interment will be in the Bitzer cemetery at Carroll.

The remains were brought to this city by Mader & Ebert, after Acting Coroner E. C. Fricke viewed the body.

MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LIMBER NECK or PTOMAIN. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified your statements. One case of Limber-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got well. The rest of my flock straightened out and are doing well now.

Charles G. Dawes Airs His Views
On Senate Rules.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—(UP.)—Back from a campaign of the Pacific coast Vice President Charles G. Dawes today declared there is no doubt of the overwhelming sentiment among all classes of people for reform of senate rules.

"The issue is already made in the minds of the people and they demand that it be fought out," Dawes said.

The vice president expressed satisfaction with his western trip, devoted largely to his campaign for a reform of the senate rules permitting filibusters.

Dawes said he would leave early in October for a tour of eastern and southern states. Oct. 12 he speaks in Elizabeth, N. J.; Oct. 15 at Atlanta, Ga. Dates for his appearance in Louisville, Indianapolis and Columbus, Ohio, have not been set.

On the Pacific coast tour the vice president traveled 5,800 miles and made 15 speeches in five states.

KEEPING WELL

TREATING PARALYSIS
WITH MALARIA

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

A RECENT newspaper dispatch from New York says that an Eastern hospital is giving its paralytic patients malaria in the hope of curing or at least relieving their paralysis. This news item is evidently based on an article which recently appeared in a leading medical journal of the country in which Doctor Bunker and Doctor Kirby reported the results in 53 hopeless paralytic patients in the New York Psychiatric Institute at Wards Island.

To attempt to cure a person of one disease by giving him another would seem at first thought like the black magic of the Middle Ages. Yet it has long been known that an occasional unfortunate, suffering from general paralysis, seemed to improve after a long illness of some other kind. As far back as 1887, Jauregg of Vienna found that a number of these hopeless patients given tuberculin lived longer and improved more than those who were not treated. But tuberculosis is a difficult disease to control, while malaria is not dangerous and can be easily stopped by quinine. So after experimenting for 30 years, he inoculated nine paralytic patients with malaria. Six of these were early cases, of which three made such marked improvement that they were discharged, went back to work and were again able to support themselves. In 1922, he treated over 200 cases, of which 50 were discharged as cured. Similar results were obtained by other European investigators.

General paralysis, paresis or softening of the brain, as it is also called, is a condition that has hitherto been regarded as hopeless.

There are no recoveries, neither is there any treatment for this terrible disease. Any experiments that might lead to improvement are therefore justifiable.

Bunker and Kirby selected 32 patients, in whom the disease was plain but not far advanced. All of them had been committed to the state hospital as hopelessly insane. Each was inoculated with malaria, was allowed to have from eight to twelve distinct chills and was then given quinine enough to kill the malaria germs. Of these 32, 18 are much improved, 17 so much so as to be discharged and to return to their former occupations.

How long will these men remain sane? No one knows, any more than we know how, one disease can cure another. But anything which will offer any hope to the victim of general paralysis and especially to his friends is worth developing.

Ranger Couldn't See

Skunk as Family Pet

United States Forest Ranger Lewis Hanson of the Two Medicine valley in Glacier National park fed flapjacks all winter to a mink, a weasel, a skunk and two gray squirrels. The mink, weasel and the squirrels got so tame they ate out of his hand, but he left the skunk to wait on itself "cafeteria fashion."

Veteran trappers of the Rocky mountains declare this is the first time they ever heard of a mink or a weasel getting tame enough to eat out of a man's hand.

The incident came to official notice when Ranger Hanson kept reporting a shortage in flour rations. The chief ranger, when he discovered what Ranger Hanson was doing with his flour, was first inclined to reprimand the subordinate, but on looking over the rules and regulations, he changed his mind and allowed the extra supply.

In Uncle Sam's manual, forest rangers are instructed to be kind to animals.

Ranger Hanson's amiability has extended to more species than any other ranger has yet made pets of in the wilds of the Rockies.

"Of course, in the tourist season it's different, but during the lonely months of the long winter a fellow has a friendly feeling for anything with life in it," Ranger Hanson volunteered.

"These animals evidently felt the same way about it, for they kept hanging around my cabin door all winter, and I sure couldn't regard 'em as anything but companions of the wilds."

"But that darned skunk! I just couldn't bring myself to fondle him, although the poor devil almost wagged his tail as friendly as a dog when he approached me begging for the flapjacks which he had seen me feed to the other animals. I had to laugh at myself at times when I was almost convinced that he was sincerely friendly in the wagging of that tail."

"Once I was on the verge of giving him the hand offerings, just to show that I had no partiality for the other animals. I guess if I had had two suits of clothes I might have done it."

MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LIMBER NECK or PTOMANE. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified your statements. One case of Limber-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got well. The rest of my flock straightened out and are doing well now.

Coat of Arms Changed
The eagle and the sword on the West Point coat of arms has been reversed. Surmounting it was an American eagle.

Got Off Cheap
The late Samuel Gompers, condemning the pardon of two notorious law breakers, said one day to a Washington correspondent.
"The short time these men have served, about a tenth of their actual sentences, reminds me of a story. It's a story about a bogus oil stock millionaire who motored a friend out to his new home on Long Island. The friend gazed in awe at the vast pile.
"Holy smoke, George," he said, "what did this cost you?"
"Three months is all," answered the millionaire."

THRILLS OF DROP FROM AIRPLANE
Parachutists Make Interesting Experiments.
There is a theory that if one should have the misfortune to fall, say, from a cliff-top or high building, one would be dead before one hit the ground.
But what aerial experiments now seem to indicate is that a man can fall at a great speed through the air for quite an appreciable distance and yet retain control over his faculties and know what he is doing. "Ariel" writes, in the Washington Post.
In one test recently an experienced parachutist postponed deliberately the opening of his apparatus, after he had sprung from a high-flying airplane, until he had fallen sheer through the air for five or six seconds. Then, precisely when he had intended to do so, he pulled the necessary cord, opened his parachute, and sailed to the ground.
Some of our biggest aerial thrills nowadays occur in experiments for perfecting parachutes or, as they are called, "airmen's life belts."

Mr. G. G. Grey, who conducts a bookshop in Trinity street, Cambridge, England, has traced the line of occupants of his establishment back to the year 1581. The names of those doing business there prior to that date seem to be lost in oblivion. Mr. Grey is anxious to learn if any person knows of an older bookshop. It was in 1581 that Queen Elizabeth knighted Sir Francis Drake, who had discovered New Albion two years earlier; but there is no record of his having established a bookshop at Drake's bay, so Mr. Grey need expect no help in his researches from this quarter.

Points to Consider in Completing Toilette
It is unquestionably the added small touch of ornament or trimming that stamps the toilette as smart or otherwise, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Dressing has gradually become standardized and is practically in the hands of experts. One cannot help buying clothes that are smart, but one is free to add any of the myriad small touches personal taste selects. It is just here that a woman proves whether she has good taste.
To begin with, there are three points to be answered every time a woman steps forth after her toilette is completed. Has she selected the proper clothes to set off her individual style? Does her complete costume present a balanced and harmonious picture? Is she properly dressed for the occasion? These three questions must be answered in the affirmative if the effect is to be really chic.
Thousands of women know how to dress their own type. Perhaps hundreds give thought to the unity of the complete whole, but there are few who understand exactly what toilette best suits the occasion, and it is only when these three cardinal points are considered together that we obtain the perfect result.
It is not so much a matter of taste as it is of thought. Taste can be cultivated easily enough. We have proved that with our major clothes. Also we all love to dress becomingly. Where we fail is in giving the matter proper thought. We turn to admire a perfectly turned-out woman and wish that we could achieve the same air of distinction with our own clothes, but we do not give the proper thought and time to accomplishing this, and we impulsively rush in to buy some beautiful bag, chain, scarf or what-not, without regard to whether it will blend with any of our clothes or not. There have never been such beautiful accessories to dress as there are just now, and it should be the ambition of each woman to choose these intelligently.

Fate's Cruel Thrust
An English inventor, eighty-three years old, received a sad blow in the hour of his triumph. For over twenty years, the inventor, a resident of Slough, has been struggling patiently to realize his great ambition to improve the tone of the piano. And all through those years his wife shared his enthusiasm. At last he triumphed. He found the secret, with the aid of which a prominent piano manufacturing company believe they can produce an instrument that will revolutionize piano manufacture in that country, and put the English piano in the forefront in the world's markets. But just when he had succeeded, his devoted wife died, and the old man is now prostrated. "I've done my work; my wife is dead, and I have nothing to live for now," is all he can say.

May Conscript Police
The Iceland government has drawn up a project for introducing conscription for the police service. All men between twenty and fifty years would be liable for service.
The reason for this project is an incident which happened a few years ago in Reykjavik. A Russian Bolshevik received an order for deportation and his colleagues in Iceland violently and effectively opposed the police, when the order was to be carried out. At last a voluntary citizen army was formed, which was forced to fight a regular battle in front of the house where the Russian lived. It was then discovered that the police were not sufficient and therefore help is being sought in regular conscription for police service.

Oyster Rich in Pearls
An oyster which proved to be a solid mass of pearls has been labelled as the most remarkable find in the Florida pearl fisheries. The gems contained within the shell ranged in size from a pin head to a cow pea. In color the pearls were black, brown, cream and snow-white, and were embedded clear through the body of the oyster, with a thin filmy skin covering them, through which they could plainly be seen on both sides of the oyster, which was a nice-sized one, and contained, perhaps, 500 pearls. Only the great muscle, gills and mantle of the oyster were free from pearls.

Real Spirit Phenomena
Genuine psychic phenomena actually occur. This statement was made by J. Malcolm Bird, Editor of the Scientific American, in an address before the Medill School of Journalism in Chicago. "There are real 'spirit voices', though we have no proof that they are spirits. There are genuine clairvoyants, who can see pictures of the past, present and future. There are spirit writings which display power far beyond the ability of the writer. And there are even more surprising genuine phenomena in the field of the objective or physical manifestations."

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Coat of Arms Changed

The eagle and the sword on the West Point coat of arms has been reversed. For thirty years the coat of arms consisted of a perpendicularly striped shield, bearing on its face a helmet of Mars through which a sword ran diagonally downward from the right or "sinister" side. Surmounting it was an American eagle.

Got Off Cheap

The late Samuel Gompers, condemning the pardon of two notorious law breakers, said one day to a Washington correspondent:
"The short time these men have served, about a tenth of their actual sentences, reminds me of a story. It's a story about a bogus oil stock millionaire who motored a friend out to his new home on Long Island. The friend gazed in awe at the vast pile.
"Holy smoke, George," he said, "what did this cost you?"
"Three months is all," answered the millionaire."

THRILLS OF DROP FROM AIRPLANE

Parachutists Make Interesting Experiments.

There is a theory that if one should have the misfortune to fall, say, from a cliff-top or high building, one would be dead before one hit the ground.
But what aerial experiments now seem to indicate is that a man can fall at a great speed through the air for quite an appreciable distance and yet retain control over his faculties and know what he is doing. "Ariel" writes, in the Washington Post.

In one test recently an experienced parachutist postponed deliberately the opening of his apparatus, after he had sprung from a high-flying airplane, until he had fallen sheer through the air for five or six seconds. Then, precisely when he had intended to do so, he pulled the necessary cord, opened his parachute, and sailed to the ground.

Some of our biggest aerial thrills nowadays occur in experiments for perfecting parachutes or, as they are called, "airmen's life belts."

Leaping from an airplane at a great altitude to test an experimental apparatus, a pilot fell like a stone for such a distance before his parachute opened that his downward rush set up such air friction that, as he declared afterward, "it began to feel as though it was burning my face."

There was another thrill when a novice, learning how to parachute-jump from a fast-flying airplane, got his gear entangled with the rear control surfaces. The parachute was torn and those in the airplane gave him up for lost. But, even with his parachute damaged, he managed to alight without injuring himself, although his rate of descent was far greater than it should have been.

One civilian pilot, gliding down to land, found that his controls had become jammed when he was only 150 feet from the ground. Jumping out with his parachute, the apparatus opened in the nick of time, and enabled him to alight without injury.

What an efficient parachute means to an aviator was shown recently when, on a dark night and when flying high over a big center of population, a machine developed mechanical trouble. The pilot managed to steer it away until it was above open country, and then, springing from it with his parachute, made a safe descent upon the dark countryside below, the machine crashing some distance away and bursting into flames.

Fate's Cruel Thrust

An English inventor, eighty-three years old, received a sad blow in the hour of his triumph. For over twenty years, the inventor, a resident of Slough, has been struggling patiently to realize his great ambition to improve the tone of the piano. And all through those years his wife shared his enthusiasm. At last he triumphed. He found the secret, with the aid of which a prominent piano manufacturing company believe they can produce an instrument that will revolutionize piano manufacture in that country, and put the English piano in the forefront in the world's markets. But just when he had succeeded, his devoted wife died, and the old man is now prostrated. "I've done my work; my wife is dead, and I have nothing to live for now," is all he can say.

May Conscript Police

The Iceland government has drawn up a plan for introducing conscription for the police service. All men between twenty and fifty years would be liable for service.

The reason for this project is an incident which happened a few years ago in Reykjavik. A Russian Bolshevik received an order for deportation and his colleagues in Iceland violently and effectively opposed the police, when the order was to be carried out. At last a voluntary citizen army was formed, which was forced to fight a regular battle in front of the house where the Russian lived. It was then discovered that the police were not sufficient and therefore help is being sought in regular conscription for police service.

Oyster Rich in Pearls

An oyster which proved to be a solid mass of pearls has been labelled as the most remarkable find in the Florida pearl fisheries. The gems contained within the shell ranged in size from a pin head to a cow pea. In color the pearls were black, brown, cream and snow-white, and were embedded clear through the body of the oyster, with a thin filmy skin covering them, through which they could plainly be seen on both sides of the oyster, which was a nice-sized one, and contained, perhaps, 500 pearls. Only the great muscle, gills and mantle of the oyster were free from pearls.

Real Spirit Phenomena

Genuine psychic phenomena actually occur. This statement was made by J. Malcolm Bird, Editor of the Scientific American, in an address before the Medill School of Journalism in Chicago. "There are real 'spirit voices', though we have no proof that they are spirits. There are genuine clairvoyants, who can see pictures of the past, present and future. There are spirit writings which display power far beyond the ability of the writer. And there are even more surprising genuine phenomena in the field of the objective or physical manifestations."

Long-Sleeve Dress for Chilly Days of Autumn

Points to Consider in Completing Toilette

It is unquestionably the added small touch of ornament or trimming that stamps the toilette as smart or otherwise, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Dressing has gradually become standardized and is practically in the hands of experts. One cannot help buying clothes that are smart, but one is free to add any of the myriad small touches personal taste selects. It is just here that a woman proves whether she has good taste.

To begin with, there are three points to be answered every time a woman steps forth after her toilette is completed. Has she selected the proper clothes to set off her individual style? Does her complete costume present a balanced and harmonious picture? Is she properly dressed for the occasion? These three questions must be answered in the affirmative if the effect is to be really chic.

Thousands of women know how to dress their own type. Perhaps hundreds give thought to the unity of the complete whole, but there are few who understand exactly what toilette best suits the occasion, and it is only when these three cardinal points are considered together that we obtain the perfect result.

Consider Suitability in Selection of Frock

While a tendency toward a somewhat greater elaboration in formal clothes is gradually creeping into the mode, in the fashions designed for daytime and for country wear, simplicity is the unfailing rule. There probably has never been a time when informal clothes expressed in every line and detail a greater sense of the fitness of things and of the essential purpose for which they were created, than they do at the present time.

Women have learned much within the past decade as to the whys and wherefores of the mode, but nothing of greater moment than the fact that suitability is the guiding factor in the selection of clothes.

In the accentuated simplicity of sports and resort fashions is that indubitable charm and not a little of their distinction. Materials also have much to do with their attractiveness, and color contributes immensely to the effective result.

No Record Available

Mr. G. G. Grey, who conducts a bookshop in Trinity street, Cambridge, England, has traced the line of occupants of his establishment back to the year 1581. The names of those doing business there prior to that date seem to be lost in oblivion. Mr. Grey is anxious to learn if any person knows of an older bookshop. It was in 1581 that Queen Elizabeth knighted Sir Francis Drake, who had discovered New Albion two years earlier; but there is no record of his having established a bookshop at Drake's bay, so Mr. Grey need expect no help in his researches from this quarter.

THE OTHER FELLOW OR YOU?

There are many men and women, in business and out of it, who absolutely refuse to admit, even to themselves, that they are to blame for things that don't happen to turn out right. They are never wrong! It is always the fault of somebody else, or of fate or fortune or chance or circumstance or any other old thing that can serve as an excuse.

Once in a while such a person has counteracting qualities which enable him or her to win; but as a class, self-excusers are self-defeatists, and they fight their own shadows and cleave empty air.

Many a local merchant insists that his town is "different." The successful advertising methods of another town will not apply here, because this is "different." They never recall the fact that a circus advertises with the same posters and in the same manner in every quarter of the nation. They find no differences in communities or people.

If a business or venture does not prove profitable one way, it will another and some other fellow will do it and has done it. Too many of us persist in attempting to educate people to his idea of what they should read, wear or believe.

The self-excuser is also very much in love with himself. When he does one little thing he thinks everybody should applaud the performance; but this is a busy world and humanity does nothing of the kind, and the landscape is dotted over with tombstones erected "in memory of."

There are all sorts of courage in the world, but the best and bravest courage of which we know, is for a man or woman to sit down calmly, take an inventory of faults, weaknesses and other detrimental qualities, then start in to eliminate them just as one would pull weeds out of the garden. Excuses are useless. Analyze, but don't explain or apologize. Just get the thing done.

GOOD PROGRAM
AT SESSION OF
TARLTON UNION

Good Citizenship Was Topic
Discussed—Next Meeting
October Second.

The regular meeting of the Tarlton W. C. T. U. was held Friday at the home of Mrs. Chloe Hiatt.

The following officers were elected: President, Mary Porter; vice president, Chloe Hiatt; secretary-treasurer, Hazel Kettman, and directors of departments: flower mission, Miss Mary Shoemaker, Tarlton; Bible in school, Chloe Hiatt, Tarlton, and Ada Aldenderfer, Circleville; anti-narcotics, Mrs. Charles Valentine, Tarlton; scientific temperance instruction, Mrs. Val Valentine, Stoutsville.

The topic for the day, "Good Citizenship," was then taken up and several papers were read and discussed.

No nation can rise higher than the character of its citizens. It is our duty, therefore, to be good citizens ourselves and to aid in creating thruout our country, ideals of citizenship based upon moral standards that shall make our nation the foremost in the world.

The word "citizen" has two uses in present day speech; one signifying merely an inhabitant, the other signifying a political status. A Christian citizen is a follower of Jesus Christ, who relates his Christian principles to political action.

Enforcement of law is the most needed contribution to good government at this time. Good citizens can implicitly obey the law themselves; courteously protest against jests at prohibition; cooperate with school teachers to secure emphasis on scientific temperance teaching and citizenship study.

Study all public questions and the attitude of every aspirant for office, vote at primaries and final elections, uphold the officers in charge of law enforcement, and finally, since more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of, a good citizen will pray for our country and its officials.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting, Friday, October 2, will be at the home of Mrs. Sarah Mowery.

Earth's Population

Ernest George Ravenstein, geographer and statistician, estimated the population of the earth at 1,487,900,000 in 1890, and his figures stood unchanged for some years. Another computation made in the early '90s put the total at 1,450,850,000. Estimates of the world's population today range from 1,750,000,000 to 1,850,000,000.

LAKE IN TENNESSEE
DISAPPEARS IN CAVE

Swallowed Up With Roar
When Roof of Cavern Falls.

Mayfield, Ky.—Particulars have reached here from the Idaho Springs vicinity, across the Kentucky line in Tennessee, of the swallowing up of a small lake on the farm of C. P. Warfield by the collapse of the roof of a cave.

The lake dropped into subterranean regions with a roar like that of a locomotive's passing, according to the story attributed to W. L. Warfield, who was in the neighborhood and saw the water dropping into the cavern.

In place of the lake there was an insignificant pool, scarcely worth notice. The hole when first seen by W. L. Warfield was about four feet in diameter, and the waters rushed down in a torrent, carrying fish, turtles and other inhabitants of the lake away with the great force of the suction.

The water plowed through its new channel underground for some distance and then found a new exit a few hundred yards from its former location.

Got Idea in Dream

A "dream invention," making possible moving-picture shows in broad daylight is claimed by a young book-binder in Budapest, according to a dispatch from that city, the New York World says.

The inventor projects pictures not against a white screen but against a rapidly rotating disk covered with strips of dark green and dark blue paper which radiates from the center. The dispatch says the invention has been proved a complete success by experiments and is already patented. The inventor says the idea came to him in a dream and he is unable to explain it.

TRICKS OF MEMORY
HARD TO EXPLAIN

Recollections Swayed by
Condition of Mind.

I have had my full share of those emotional experiences which are supposed to make indelible records on the memory, yet they are imperfectly remembered.

I have been operated on in a hospital, and have had my days of fighting with death, yet of all the faces that surrounded me, and particularly of the great surgeon's bent over me in such anxious care, I have no clear vision. On my oath, I could not answer he were dark or fair, and if I met one of my nurses in the street, I should not know her; but the thing clearest in my memory is that as I went to the operating room my surgeon played a Beethoven sonata on the grand piano which stood in the corridor.

To speak of something even more intimate; my father's face has grown dim to me, but the face of a young girl I saw at a concert when I was nineteen or twenty floats up detached and lovely, like a white lily on a dark pool; or like an apparition made immortal by an artist's brush.

And it is the same with nature. The great panoramas have become dim and clouded, but some humble feature of the landscape stands out as though all the light of day were concentrated on it. There is a valley in Wales which I saw but once; it lies deep and silent between two conical peaks of volcanic origin, and through it runs a little river which sends up a tiny thread of sound; yet this valley impressed itself indelibly upon my memory.

For years after I chanced upon it I never ran the water into my bath without the sound of that mysterious river echoing in my ears. It gave me a strong sense of something occult and secret, and at times I dreamed of it.

And, again, on a road I took almost daily in New England, I came suddenly one day upon a maple which was a mass of yellow flame against a lilac sky, and while I remembered nothing else about the road, I always see that torch of fire burning quietly against the evening sky.

Why are such things remembered, when so many more important things have been dimmed by time? I can only suppose that at the moment when I saw them I was peculiarly plastic to their influence, or, to put it another way, was sensitized, like the plate of the photographer, to their impression. —W. J. Dawson in the Century Magazine.

Lions Attack Motor Cars

A lion charged a motor car in the bush in Kenya, British East Africa. An American millionaire visitor was out driving in an eight-cylinder two-seater car when, without warning of the presence of the lion, his attention was attracted by a sudden crashing sound. The next second a lion appeared, rushed at the motor car, caught hold of one mudguard with its teeth, bent and tore the stout metal, and disappeared in disgust before a shot could be fired. Lions seldom charge motor cars, but the incident is not without parallel. On another occasion a lion and a motorist met in mutual surprise round the corner of a patch of bush. The lion took a flying leap, rested on the hot bonnet for a moment, and then jumped off before the driver had recovered.

Found Old Burial Place

An urn holding charred bones and ashes of a human being of almost 2,000 years ago was discovered by a farmer of Randalstown county, Antrim, Ireland, while he was digging on his farm. Having the appearance of an ordinary vase the urn was resting neck downward on a large stone, and another stone had been placed on the top. The urn is about eighteen inches in width. Right up to Christian times it was the custom for burials, especially to take place in this fashion—the body being burned and then the cremated remains placed in an urn which would be turned on a hill or height facing the rising sun. The spot at which the find was made, was also on a height directly facing the rising sun. The find, which may be a relic of an era as far back as the Stone age, has aroused much interest in the district.

Transplanted Eye

A one-eyed fish with apparently normal vision has been produced in the experimental laboratories of the University of Chicago, according to a recent announcement. In the experiment the eyes of the fish were removed and one was transplanted into the forehead. This operation was performed by Dr. Theodor Koppanyi, famous European eye specialist, and J. Franklin Pearcy, research student in the university, searching for a cure for blindness.

Insulin for Cancer

Insulin has cured cancer in mice, according to the paper read by Prof. Friederich Silberstein, of Vienna, Austria, Institute of Experimental Pathology, before the medical association there. Professor Silberstein described how he had verified by countless experiments on mice that when they were treated with maximum supportable doses of insulin after the excision of their carcinoma no relapse of the malady was observed in 50 per cent of the cases.

Girl's Heart Stops for Three Minutes, Is Revived

Lorain, Ohio.—Modern surgery triumphed over death at St. Joseph's hospital when Martha Ericson, eight, was revived after her heart had stopped beating for three minutes.

An anesthetic had been administered by Dr. R. A. Stack, who was about to perform a tonsil operation, when he discovered that the girl had stopped breathing. Doctor Stack injected adrenalin into the heart. It was fully three minutes before the child began to show signs of life.

If a business or venture does not prove profitable one way, it will another and some other fellow will do it and has done it. Too many of us persist in attempting to educate people to his idea of what they should read, wear or believe.

The self-excuser is also very much in love with himself. When he does one little thing he thinks everybody should applaud the performance; but this is a busy world and humanity does nothing of the kind, and the landscape is dotted over with tombstones erected "in memory of."

There are all sorts of courage in the world, but the best and bravest courage of which we know, is for a man or woman to sit down calmly, take an inventory of faults, weaknesses and other detrimental qualities, then start in to eliminate them just as one would pull weeds out of the garden. Excuses are useless. Analyze, but don't explain or apologize. Just get the thing done.

GOOD PROGRAM
AT SESSION OF TARLTON UNION

Good Citizenship Was Topic
Discussed—Next Meeting
October Second.

The regular meeting of the Tarlton W. C. T. U. was held Friday at the home of Mrs. Chloe Hiatt.

The following officers were elected: President, Mary Porter; vice president, Chloe Hiatt; secretary-treasurer, Hazel Ketteman, and directors of departments: flower mission, Miss Mary Shoemaker, Tarlton; Bible in school, Chloe Hiatt, Tarlton, and Ada Aldenderfer, Circleville; anti-narcotics, Mrs. Charles Valentine, Tarlton; scientific temperance instruction, Mrs. Val Valentine, Stoutsville.

The topic for the day, "Good Citizenship," was then taken up and several papers were read and discussed. No nation can rise higher than the character of its citizens. It is our duty, therefore, to be good citizens ourselves and to aid in creating throughout our country, ideals of citizenship based upon moral standards that shall make our nation the foremost in the world.

The word "citizen" has two uses in present day speech; one signifying merely an inhabitant, the other signifying a political status. A Christian citizen is a follower of Jesus Christ, who relates his Christian principles to political action.

Enforcement of law is the most needed contribution to good government at this time. Good citizens can implicitly obey the law themselves; courteously protest against jests at prohibition; cooperate with school teachers to secure emphasis on scientific temperance teaching and citizenship study.

Study all public questions and the attitude of every aspirant for office, vote at primaries and final elections, uphold the officers in charge of law enforcement, and finally, since more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of, a good citizen will pray for our country and its officials.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting, Friday, October 2, will be at the home of Mrs. Sarah Mowery.

Earth's Population

Ernest George Ravenstein, geographer and statistician, estimated the population of the earth at 1,487,900,000 in 1890, and his figures stood unchanged for some years. Another computation made in the early '90s put the total at 1,440,850,000. Estimates of the world's population today range from 1,750,000,000 to 1,850,000,000.

LAKE IN TENNESSEE
DISAPPEARS IN CAVE

Swallowed Up With Roar
When Roof of Cavern Falls.

Mayfield, Ky.—Particulars have reached here from the Idaho Springs vicinity, across the Kentucky line in Tennessee, of the swallowing up of a small lake on the farm of C. P. Warfield by the collapse of the roof of a cave.

The lake dropped into subterranean regions with a roar like that of a locomotive's passing, according to the story attributed to W. L. Warfield, who was in the neighborhood and saw the water dropping into the cavern.

In place of the lake there was an insignificant pool, scarcely worth notice. The hole when first seen by W. L. Warfield was about four feet in diameter, and the waters rushed down in a torrent, carrying fish, turtles and other inhabitants of the lake away with the great force of the suction.

The water plowed through its new channel underground for some distance and then found a new exit a few hundred yards from its former location.

Got Idea in Dream

A "dream invention," making possible moving-picture shows in broad daylight is claimed by a young book-binder in Budapest, according to a dispatch from that city, the New York World says.

The inventor projects pictures not against a white screen but against a rapidly rotating disk covered with strips of dark green and dark blue paper which radiates from the center. The dispatch says the invention has been proved a complete success by experiments and is already patented. The inventor says the idea came to him in a dream and he is unable to explain it.

TRICKS OF MEMORY
HARD TO EXPLAIN

Recollections Swayed by
Condition of Mind.

I have had my full share of those emotional experiences which are supposed to make indelible records on the memory, yet they are imperfectly remembered.

I have been operated on in a hospital, and have had my days of fighting with death, yet of all the faces that surrounded me, and particularly of the great surgeon's bent over me in such anxious care, I have no clear vision. On my oath, I could not answer he were dark or fair, and if I met one of my nurses in the street, I should not know her; but the thing clearest in my memory is that as I went to the operating room my surgeon played a Beethoven sonata on the grand piano which stood in the corridor.

To speak of something even more intimate; my father's face has grown dim to me, but the face of a young girl I saw at a concert when I was nineteen or twenty floats up detached and lovely, like a white lily on a dark pool; or like an apparition made immortal by an artist's brush.

And it is the same with nature. The great panoramas have become dim and clouded, but some humble feature of the landscape stands out as though all the light of day were concentrated on it. There is a valley in Wales which I saw but once; it lies deep and silent between two conical peaks of volcanic origin, and through it runs a little river which sends up a tiny thread of sound; yet this valley impressed itself indelibly upon my memory.

For years after I chanced upon it I never ran the water into my bath without the sound of that mysterious river echoing in my ears. It gave me a strong sense of something occult and secret, and at times I dreamed of it.

And, again, on a road I took almost daily in New England, I came suddenly one day upon a maple which was a mass of yellow flame against a lilac sky, and while I remembered nothing else about the road, I always see that torch of fire burning quietly against the evening sky.

Why are such things remembered, when so many more important things have been dimmed by time? I can only suppose that at the moment when I saw them I was peculiarly plastic to their influence, or, to put it another way, was sensitized, like the plate of the photographer, to their impression. —W. J. Dawson in the Century Magazine.

Lions Attack Motor Cars

A lion charged a motor car in the bush in Kenya, British East Africa. An American millionaire visitor was out driving in an eight-cylinder two-seater car when, without warning of the presence of the lion, his attention was attracted by a sudden crashing sound. The next second a lion appeared, rushed at the motor car, caught hold of one mudguard with its teeth, bent and tore the stout metal, and disappeared in disgust before a shot could be fired. Lions seldom charge motor cars, but the incident is not without parallel. On another occasion a lion and a motorist met in mutual surprise round the corner of a patch of bush. The lion took a flying leap, rested on the hot bonnet for a moment, and then jumped off before the driver had recovered.

Found Old Burial Place

An urn holding charred bones and ashes of a human being of almost 2,000 years ago was discovered by a farmer of Randalstown county, Antrim, Ireland, while he was digging on his farm. Having the appearance of an ordinary vase the urn was resting neck downward on a large stone, and another stone had been placed on the top. The urn is about eighteen inches in width. Right up to Christian times it was the custom for burials, especially to take place in this fashion—the body being burned and then the cremated remains placed in an urn which would be turned on a hill or height facing the rising sun. The spot at which the find was made, was also on a height directly facing the rising sun. The find, which may be a relic of an era as far back as the Stone age, has aroused much interest in the district.

Transplanted Eye

A one-eyed fish with apparently normal vision has been produced in the experimental laboratories of the University of Chicago, according to a recent announcement. In the experiment the eyes of the fish were removed and one was transplanted into the forehead. This operation was performed by Dr. Theodor Koppanyi, famous European eye specialist, and J. Franklin Pearce, research student in the university, searching for a cure for blindness.

Insulin for Cancer

Insulin has cured cancer in mice, according to the paper read by Prof. Friederich Silberstein, of Vienna, Austria, Institute of Experimental Pathology, before the medical association there. Professor Silberstein described how he had verified by countless experiments on mice that when they were treated with maximum supportable doses of insulin after the excision of their carcinoma no relapse of the malady was observed in 50 per cent of the cases.

Girl's Heart Stops for
Three Minutes, Is Revived

Lorain, Ohio.—Modern surgery triumphed over death at St. Joseph's hospital when Martha Ericson, eight, was revived after her heart had stopped beating for three minutes.

An anesthetic had been administered by Dr. R. A. Stack, who was about to perform a tonsil operation, when he discovered that the girl had stopped breathing. Doctor Stack injected adrenalin into the heart. It was fully three minutes before the child began to show signs of life.

Age Clearly Is Not to Be Estimated by Dates

A medical officer of health, who is also a coroner, in the west of England, claims that he is still quite capable of performing his duties at the ripe age of ninety-nine. An example of such activity in a nonagenarian lends support to the view of some of our physiologists that human life may be greatly prolonged in the future. Doctor Carrel, of the Rockefeller institute, has just announced that his experiments show that some of the tissues of the human body can be "considered as potentially immortal."

Long-lived persons are generally the descendants of long-living ancestors. Walter M. Gallighan comments, in the Washington Post. Their age is not to be estimated by dates, but by the condition of the arteries, the retention of the capacity for physical and mental activity, and their recuperative power. Tenacity of life is associated with a vigorous, well-exercised brain, and it is notable that many men of science and thinkers live to a great age.

A considerable number of people who have survived long after reaching the age of 100 were born in Scotland. The longest-lived man, according to a record said to be fairly authentic, was Goulour McCraun, who died in the island of Jura, during the reign of Charles I at the age of one hundred and eighty. Thomas Parr, known as "Old Parr," was a Shropshire peasant, who showed no signs of ill health when he was one hundred and fifty-three. Among the Scottish super-centenarians we read of Doctor Movet, of Dumfries, who died at one hundred and thirty-nine; Lawrence, of Orkney, one hundred and forty; Robert MacBride, one hundred and thirty; Mary Innes, of Skye, one hundred and thirty-seven; and Peter Gordon, one hundred and thirty-one. In 1782 Evans Williams died at Carmarthen, aged one hundred and forty-five. Mary Brook, a Staffordshire woman, attained the age of one hundred and forty-eight; and Mrs. Judith Scott, of Islington, died at one hundred and sixty-two in 1792.

Compared with these veterans, the man of sixty is still young and the man of eighty should be in his prime.

Beware Chinese Remedies

Weird and wonderful are the medicines prescribed by at least 2,000 Chinese quack doctors who are operating throughout the United States and whose "remedies" are on sale in many Chinese stores in this country. These men, however, should not be confused with the legitimate Chinese physicians and surgeons, of whom there are probably one hundred in the United States. Most of the "doctors" were cooks, laundrymen, stevedores, or opium peddlers before they began to dabble in medicine. The patient is requested to describe his ailments, while the "doctor" writes down ostensibly what the patient has told him. In one instance the "doctor" was found to be marking a ticket for a Chinese lottery in San Francisco. The medicines prescribed include leaves, ground claws of a lion, dried toads, beetles, and snakes. These articles provide quite a flourishing trade of their own, and good prices are obtained by men who can sell "tiger hair." A man was found recently catching and clipping stray dogs for the necessary "tiger hair." Lion claws are probably obtained from dead cats.

Youth and Age

Representative McLeod of Michigan, the "baby member" of congress, is the sponsor of a bill for the compulsory registration of babies' finger and toe prints, and at a dinner in Washington Mr. McLeod said:
"It is a fine thing to be young, but youth is apt to take life overseriously. A rich young Chicagoan, for instance, drowned himself in the middle of the Atlantic the other day because a girl had refused him. Older men don't do that sort of thing.
"An elderly washer woman said to one of her clients who had been disappointed in love:
"Don't take it to heart so, dearie. You'll get over it." Look at me. I was jilted by three young fellows and lost two breach o' promise suits, but, thanks be to goodness, I've lived to bury a couple of husbands."

Told of Mark Twain

There is nothing more delightful in the Mark Twain autobiography than the extracts from the biography of her father written by his thirteen-year-old daughter "Susy," work that she did in her bedroom at night and kept hidden. Here are two items:
"Papa uses very strong language, but I have an idea not nearly so strong, as when he first married mamma. A lady acquaintance of his is rather apt to interrupt what one is saying, and papa told mamma that he thought he should say to the lady's husband 'I am glad your wife wasn't present when the Delly said "Let there be light."'"

Hookworm Curative Cheap

Carbon tetrachloride, a cheap commercial chemical, has been found to be a good curative in the treatment for hookworm infection, as a result of experimental work with it in British Guiana. Its curative value was discovered through experiments on animals by the United States Department of Agriculture. One of its chief advantages is that it causes no serious reaction on the patient while it is being administered, many men suffering from hookworm being treated under a broiling sun while at work. The chemical has been used in other parts of the world with corresponding success.

SIX ARE KILLED AS TRACTION STRUCK AUTO

Little Baby is Sole Survivor of Family—Two Run Down by Machine.

Dayton, O., Sept. 21 (UP).—A one year old baby is the sole survivor of a family of seven. The father, mother and four children were killed when a traction car smashed an automobile in which they were riding in a driving rain near Lebanon, eight miles east of here.

The dead:
Noah Ruthaugh, 36.
Mrs. Elizabeth Ruthaugh, 34.
Virginia Ruthaugh, 12.
Robert Ruthaugh, 10.
Paul Ruthaugh, 8.
Clinton Ruthaugh, 6.
Ruthaugh, farmer, living near the scene of the collision, was taking his family out for a Sunday ride and failed to notice the approaching car.
The auto was picked up by the car of the Dayton and Western Traction line and carried several hundred feet where the car itself was derailed.
The crew said an alarm had been sounded for the crossing as usual but the heavy rain hindered the view.
A mother and daughter, Mrs. Mary Crowley, 73, and Miss Rose Crowley, were killed here Saturday night when they stepped into the path of an automobile. The driver was released by police when witnesses declared the accident was unavoidable.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

(United States.)
Columbus — Lieutenant James F. Hurd, Canton, was Monday appointed law clerk in the department of state by secretary of state, Col. Thad H. Brown. Appointment becomes effective October 1. Lieutenant Hurd, a veteran of the World war, succeeds Mrs. Florence Bates, Kuhn, who has accepted a position in California. Hurd has been an employee of the United States shipping board since 1921.

Cincinnati — An unidentified woman about 65 years old jumped Monday from the Central bridge and fell 125 feet to her death in the Ohio river.
Two young men saw her climb the railing and rushed to stop her but she emitted a sharp cry and leaped as they reached for her.

Ashtabula — The first victim of the typhoid epidemic here died Friday, Robert Goddard, 15, son of the cashier of the Commercial Savings and Trust company. There are now 22 cases in and near the city. A representative of the state health department has taken charge of the situation.

Tiffin — All the persuasive medicines of science failed to revive Wilford Rahla, 12 years old from influences of an anesthetic administered in a minor operation and after physicians and the pulmotor operators of the fire department had worked over him for two hours, he died at noon Friday.

STAGE-HALDEMAN.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Haldean of Bellefontaine, Ohio, announce the marriage, September 5, of their daughter, Florence Irene, to Mr. Donald D. Stage, son of Mrs. Fannie Stage, 34 Hubbard avenue, Columbus. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer of Broad Street Presbyterian church performed the ceremony at 4:30 in the afternoon at the church. There was a dinner after the wedding at the South-era hotel for members of the two families, Miss Ruth Hummel, of Circleville and Miss Eva Stage. Mr. and Mrs. Stage will be at home at 34 Hubbard avenue after October 1.

Founder Guillotined

Lavoisier, the founder of modern chemistry, was in 1794 sentenced to death and guillotined by the Revolutionary tribunal because he had, under the king, held the post of farmer general of the revenue.

Humble Frog Friend and Benefactor of Mankind

Among creatures most useful to mankind the polliwog must take his place with the cow, the horse and the dog, writes the World's Work.
More books have been written about the frog than about Shakespeare or Lincoln or Napoleon, or as Dr. Samuel Holmes put it in his book, "The Biology of the Frog":
"Perhaps no animal, except man, has been subject to so many scientific investigations. . . . In fact, most of what is known in certain departments of physiology is derived from study of this animal."

"Startling, but true, that this insignificant creature should have contributed so much to medical science, when mention of the frog usually raises the obvious queries on the edibility of its legs or why it makes so much noise when men crave sleep. In literature the frog is no hero and is always represented as being unnecessarily raucous, except by Aristophanes, who, in "The Frogs," makes Charon remark to Bacchus as they start their river journey: "Thou'll hear sweet music presently of frogs with voices wonderful as swans." But see what company Charon had!
To the scientist the voice of the frog is just as sweet as it was to Charon, even when Bacchus is not present. Without the frog, the polliwog and other marine animals, the study of the endocrine glands would be much more difficult, and the sudden and widespread extermination of the frog would retard the solution of many of the problems confronting medical science. In the study of cancer and some other diseases the mouse is favorite; the guinea pig also is a good servant of science. But the frog is leader.

Fish That Sing and Hoot

The island of Ceylon produces an anomaly in a shellfish of the mussel type which sings. While it does not warble like a bird or an opera singer, it produces a long, low, fluty sound, which has a musical quality. Seeing that these bivalves do not possess a throat in any accepted sense of the word, and certainly no vocal cords, this singing sound must be produced by some manipulation of their double shell. It is possible that increasing it produces a long, low, fluty sound, only occurs after the tide has been down for a considerable time, leaving the bivalves high and dry on the rocky beach. There is a fish which hoots, too. The Scotch fisherman calls this fish the butterman and, when caught by line or net, it makes a noise from the back of its throat when landed. Eels also make a noise when their gills. The common and very ugly gupard of our coast grunts loudly when hauled to the surface, a strange croaking noise more like the caw of a crow than the sound a fish seems likely to produce.

Wireless Typewriting

Typewriting by wireless has been successfully demonstrated in Berlin. At one end of the hall was a sending set, consisting of a typewriter, which operates a wireless transmitter which transmits the messages in two frequencies for each letter sent or key of the typewriter pressed. At the other end of the hall was a receiving set, consisting of a special form of wireless receiver which was connected to the typewriter tape machine. For each of the two frequencies received a selector, tuned to these two frequencies, operates the same letter in the tape machine as the key did in the typewriting machine at the sending station. Messages were transmitted successfully, and messages have been transmitted several miles by the same apparatus. "There is no reason," said the demonstrator, "why the transmission should not be made over any distance. It only requires a more powerful apparatus."

Meteoric Showers

The naval observatory says there was a remarkable meteoric shower, terrifying to the ignorant and possibly the most brilliant on record, beginning about midnight November 12-13, 1833, and lasting until daybreak, visible in North and South America, maximum brilliancy in latitude 22 degrees north. The most brilliant display of the preceding century was in 1799, one day earlier, visible in the same part of the earth at the same time of the night. The earth encounters this stream of meteors in November of every year; but they are more numerous at intervals of 33 or 34 years.

Called His Bluff

"When one meets one of the modern women one must be careful how one expresses oneself," remarked Binks.
"How do you make that out?" asked Smith.
"Why," replied Binks, "I was proposing to Ethel the other night, and I said, 'My dear, I would go to the ends of the earth with you.'"
"She said, 'No, you wouldn't.' I inquired why not, and she added: 'One reason is that I wouldn't go, and another is that there aren't any.'"

Familiar Happening

Mary had been brought up, so to speak, in the front seat of her father's motor car. At ten she took her first train journey. When they made the first stop she looked surprised.
Leaping out of the window, she inquired anxiously of the conductor, who had just swung himself off the steps: "What's the matter? Killed your engine?"—Vancouver Province.

AUTO DRIVEN THRU A FENCE NORTH OF CITY

Columbus Men Must Answer Charge of Operating Automobile While Drunk.

That gasoline and elderberry wine won't mix was again demonstrated Sunday afternoon on the Columbus pike north of this city, near the Walnut creek pike.
C. M. Morgan accompanied by Thomas "Red" Glaze, of Columbus, came down in circles, as the road was not straight to their vision. After plowing thru a cornfield and knocking down three fence posts they came back onto the road in the auto they were driving and just because Dr. D. V. Courtright was not going fast enough they butted his car off the road before they came to a stop. Both men were brought to this city and were lodged in prison for safekeeping and later were allowed to go to their homes. They will have a hearing this evening; they were told to bring along enough money to pay a fine for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and also to cover a charge of disorderly conduct. Their auto was held as security. They will also be required to pay the damages to Dr. Courtright's machine. Altogether this will make a dear Sabbath day's fun.

PANTS TALK.

Kuppenheimer started something when its stylists revolted from the paternity pants foisted on America by English designers.
From the straights and balloon trousers of last year, Bond street went to Oxford bags, in which a man looked like a pair of animated sacks of flour.
Some of the big custom clothes manufacturers followed the British without a murmur, but Kuppenheimer sent a few scouts out to the trade and found the American man would wear shorts and knickers, but never deck himself out like a couple of sailboats.
So Kuppenheimer announced a rebellion, a revolt from English styles in men's fashions and as a result the regulation clothes of the fall will be sensibly straight, with ample stocks of the outlandish state wide trousers in the college towns for the slickhaired shieks who think a man might just as well be dead as dressed conservatively.
More power to the American fashion-makers.
When it came to a pinch, we rebelled from British styles in tea and flavored a harbor, and by cracky, we will throw a few trainloads of pants to the wind if they try to press down upon our new narrow hips these masculine monstrosities. Oklahoma City Times.

"LUCKY" BILL SCHEME IS DECLARED ILLEGAL

The latest scheme of newspapers to increase circulation by offering prizes for $1 or $2 bills bearing certain numbers was declared unlawful by Solicitor Donnelly of the postoffice department. He ruled that the practice was a violation of the postal lottery laws and barred publications offering such prizes from the mails.
The scheme has been operated in many parts of the country by many newspapers. When it came to the attention of the postoffice department that such publications were being circulated thru the mails, the publishers immediately were notified.
In New York, several newspapers adopted the plan, in some cases publishing the lucky numbers only in their city editions, which normally get into the mails only thru posting by individuals. The department, however, pointed out to the publishers that in such instances, the individuals were liable to punishment for violating the postal laws and publication of the lucky numbers was stopped.
Solicitor Donnelly declared the scheme to be a distribution of prizes by chance in violation of section 213 of the Penal Code. Conviction carries a fine of not more than two years. The solicitor also called attention that similar schemes of printing lucky names from directories and giving prizes to their owners are likewise barred.

AMUSEMENTS

Harold Lloyd in "The Freshman," starting its engagement at the Met theater today, plays the role of a first year student who thinks he's climbing the coveted heights of popularity on a trail of ice cream cones. These he buys often and largely with money he earned selling washing machines, and by his generosity, as well as the personality he has copied from heroes of college movies and novels which he assiduously studied, he hopes to shake from his throne Chet Trask, voted the most popular fellow at college.

"The Freshman" is said to be one of Harold Lloyd's greatest characterizations, if not his greatest. "Speedy the Spender," as he becomes known, is a "Grandma's Boy" type of chap who tries to succeed with an imitation personality and doesn't learn the error of his methods until his heart has been broken by laughs and jeers. It is then that he learns the potency of the psychology, "Be yourself!" Thus "The Freshman" weaves a real story and teaching thruout the gags that promise to be exciting and thrilling, as well as hilariously amusing.

A ton of Bibles, 917 of them, costing $750 was placed in the Fort Hayes hotel and the new Neil house by the Gideons Sunday.
Frank A. Doty, president of the Ohio Gideons' association, made the presentation at both hotels. The Fort Hayes hotel received 295 Bibles and the Neil House 622.
Most of the money used to purchase the Bibles was donated by Columbus churches during the Gideons' convention there recently.
The Gideons have placed nearly 7,000,000 Bibles in hotel rooms since they began an work 25 years ago.

Age Clearly Is Not to Be Estimated by Dates
A medical officer of health, who is also a coroner, in the west of England, claims that he is still quite capable of performing his duties at the ripe age of ninety-nine. An example of such activity in a nonagenarian lends support to the view of some of our physiologists that human life may be greatly prolonged in the future. Doctor Carrel, of the Rockefeller institute, has just announced that his experiments show that some of the tissues of the human body can be "considered as potentially immortal."
Long-lived persons are generally the descendants of long-living ancestors. Walter M. Gallighan comments, in the Washington Post. Their age is not to be estimated by dates, but by the condition of the arteries, the retention of the capacity for physical and mental activity, and their recuperative power. Tenacity of life is associated with a vigorous, well-exercised brain, and it is notable that many men of science and thinkers live to a great age.
A considerable number of people who have survived long after reaching the age of 100 were born in Scotland. The longest-lived man, according to a record said to be fairly authentic, was Goulour McCraun, who died in the island of Jura, during the reign of Charles I at the age of one hundred and eighty. Thomas Parr, known as "Old Parr," was a Shropshire peasant, who showed no signs of ill health when he was one hundred and fifty-three. Among the Scottish super-centenarians we read of Doctor Movet, of Dumfries, who died at one hundred and thirty-nine; Lawrence, of Orkney, one hundred and forty; Robert MacBride, one hundred and thirty; Mary Innes, of Skye, one hundred and thirty-seven; and Peter Gordon, one hundred and thirty-one. In 1782 Evans Williams died at Carmarthen, aged one hundred and forty-five. Mary Brook, a Staffordshire woman, attained the age of one hundred and forty-eight; and Mrs. Judith Scott, of Islington, died at one hundred and sixty-two in 1792.
Compared with these veterans, the man of sixty is still young and the man of eighty should be in his prime.

Beware Chinese Remedies
Weird and wonderful are the medicines prescribed by at least 2,000 Chinese quack doctors who are operating throughout the United States and whose "remedies" are on sale in many Chinese stores in this country. These men, however, should not be confused with the legitimate Chinese physicians and surgeons, of whom there are probably one hundred in the United States. Most of the "doctors" were cooks, laundrymen, stevedores, or opium peddlers before they began to dabble in medicine. The patient is requested to describe his ailments, while the "doctor" writes down ostensibly what the patient has told him. In one instance the "doctor" was found to be marking a ticket for a Chinese lottery in San Francisco. The medicines prescribed include leaves, ground claws of a lion, dried toads, beetles, and snakes. These articles provide quite a flourishing trade of their own, and good prices are obtained by men who can sell "tiger hair." A man was found recently catching and clipping stray dogs for the necessary "tiger hair." Lion claws are probably obtained from dead cats.

Youth and Age
Representative McLeod of Michigan, the "baby member" of congress, is the sponsor of a bill for the compulsory registration of babies' finger and toe prints, and at a dinner in Washington Mr. McLeod said:
"It is a fine thing to be young, but youth is apt to take life over seriously. A rich young Chicagoan, for instance, drowned himself in the middle of the Atlantic the other day because a girl had refused him. Older men don't do that sort of thing."
"An elderly washer woman said to one of her clients who had been disappointed in love:
"Don't take it to heart so, dearie. You'll get over it. Look at me. I was jilted by three young fellows and lost two breach of promise suits, but, thanks be to goodness, I've lived to bury a couple of husbands."

Told of Mark Twain
There is nothing more delightful in the Mark Twain autobiography than the extracts from the biography of her father written by his thirteen-year-old daughter "Susy" work that she did in her bedroom at night and kept hidden. Here are two items:
"Papa uses very strong language, but I have an idea not nearly so strong, as when he first married mamma. A lady acquaintance of his is rather apt to interrupt what one is saying, and papa told mamma that he thought he should say to the lady's husband 'I am glad your wife wasn't present when the Delfy said "Let there be light."'"
Hookworm Curative Cheap
Carbon tetrachloride, a cheap commercial chemical, has been found to be a good curative in the treatment for hookworm infection, as a result of experimental work with it in British Guiana. Its curative value was discovered through experiments on animals by the United States Department of Agriculture. One of its chief advantages is that it causes no serious reaction on the patient while it is being administered, many men suffering from hookworm being treated under a broiling sun while at work. The chemical has been used in other parts of the world with corresponding success.

SIX ARE KILLED AS TRACTION STRUCK AUTO
Little Baby is Sole Survivor of Family—Two Run Down by Machine.

Dayton, O., Sept. 21 (UP).—A one year old baby is the sole survivor of a family of seven. The father, mother and four children were killed when a traction car smashed an automobile in which they were riding in a driving rain near Lebanon, eight miles east of here.
The dead:
Noah Ruthaugh, 36.
Mrs. Elizabeth Ruthaugh, 34.
Virginia Ruthaugh, 12.
Robert Ruthaugh, 10.
Paul Ruthaugh, 8.
Clinton Ruthaugh, 6.
Ruthaugh, farmer, living near the scene of the collision, was taking his family out for a Sunday ride and failed to notice the approaching car.
The auto was picked up by the car of the Dayton and Western Traction line and carried several hundred feet where the car itself was derailed.
The crew said an alarm had been sounded for the crossing as usual but the heavy rain hindered the view.
A mother and daughter, Mrs. Mary Crowley, 73, and Miss Rose Crowley, were killed here Saturday night when they stepped into the path of an automobile. The driver was released by police when witnesses declared the accident was unavoidable.

Humble Frog Friend and Benefactor of Mankind
Among creatures most useful to mankind the polliwog must take his place with the cow, the horse and the dog, writes the World's Work.
More books have been written about the frog than about Shakespeare or Lincoln or Napoleon, or as Dr. Samuel Holmes put it in his book, "The Biology of the Frog":
"Perhaps no animal, except man, has been subject to so many scientific investigations. . . . In fact, most of what is known in certain departments of physiology is derived from study of this animal."
"Startling, but true, that this insignificant creature should have contributed so much to medical science, when mention of the frog usually raises the obvious queries on the edibility of its legs or why it makes so much noise when men crave sleep. In literature the frog is no hero and is always represented as being unnecessarily raucous, except by Aristophanes, who, in "The Frogs," makes Charon remark to Bacchus as they start their river journey: "Thou'll hear sweet music presently of frogs with voices wonderful as swans." But see what company Charon had!
To the scientist the voice of the frog is just as sweet as it was to Charon, even when Bacchus is not present. Without the frog, the polliwog and other marine animals, the study of the endocrine glands would be much more difficult, and the sudden and widespread extermination of the frog would retard the solution of many of the problems confronting medical science. In the study of cancer and some other diseases the mouse is favorite; the guinea pig also is a good servant of science. But the frog is leader.

Fish That Sing and Hoot
The island of Ceylon produces an anomaly in a shellfish of the mussel type which sings. While it does not warble like a bird or an opera singer, it produces a long, low, fluty sound, which has a musical quality. Seeing that these bivalves do not possess a throat in any accepted sense of the word, and certainly no vocal cords, this singing sound must be produced by some manipulation of their double shell. It is possible that increasing it produces a long, low, fluty sound, only occurs after the tide has been down for a considerable time, leaving the bivalves high and dry on the rocky beach. There is a fish which hoots, too. The Scotch fisherman calls this fish the buttermen and, when caught by line or net, it makes a noise from the back of its throat when handled. Eels also make a noise when the hook is being removed from their gills. The common and very ugly gurnard of our coast grunts loudly when hauled to the surface, a strange croaking noise more like the caw of a crow than the sound a fish seems likely to produce.

Wireless Typewriting
Typewriting by wireless has been successfully demonstrated in Berlin. At one end of the hall was a sending set, consisting of a typewriter, which operates a wireless transmitter which transmits the messages in two frequencies for each letter sent or key of the typewriter pressed. At the other end of the hall was a receiving set, consisting of a special form of wireless receiver which was connected to the typewriter tape machine. For each of the two frequencies received a selector, tuned to these two frequencies, operates the same letter in the tape machine as the key did in the typewriting machine at the sending station. Messages were transmitted successfully, and messages have been transmitted several miles by the same apparatus. "There is no reason," said the demonstrator, "why the transmission should not be made over any distance. It only requires a more powerful apparatus."

Meteorite Showers
The naval observatory says there was a remarkable meteoric shower, terrifying to the ignorant and possibly the most brilliant on record, beginning about midnight November 12-13, 1833, and lasting until daybreak, visible in North and South America, maximum brilliancy in latitude 22 degrees north. The most brilliant display of the preceding century was in 1799, one day earlier, visible in the same part of the earth at the same time of the night. The earth encounters this stream of meteors in November of every year; but they are more numerous at intervals of 33 or 34 years.

Called His Bluff
"When one meets one of the modern women one must be careful how one expresses oneself," remarked Binks.
"How do you make that out?" asked Smith.
"Why," replied Binks, "I was proposing to Ethel the other night, and I said, 'My dear, I would go to the ends of the earth with you.'"
"She said, 'No, you wouldn't.' I inquired why not, and she added: 'One reason is that I wouldn't go and another is that there aren't any.'"

Familiar Happening
Mary had been brought up, so to speak, in the front seat of her father's motor car. At ten she took her first train journey. When they made the first stop she looked surprised.
Leaping out of the window, she inquired anxiously of the conductor, who had just swung himself off the steps: "What's the matter? Killed your engine?"—Vancouver Province.

AUTO DRIVEN THRU A FENCE NORTH OF CITY
Columbus Men Must Answer Charge of Operating Automobile While Drunk.

That gasoline and elderberry wine won't mix was again demonstrated Sunday afternoon on the Columbus pike north of this city, near the Walnut creek pike.
C. M. Morgan accompanied by Thomas "Red" Glaze, of Columbus, came down in circles, as the road was not straight to their vision. After plowing thru a cornfield and knocking down three fence posts they came back onto the road in the auto they were driving and just because Dr. D. V. Courtright was not going fast enough they butted his car off the road before they came to a stop. Both men were brought to this city and were lodged in prison for safekeeping and later were allowed to go to their homes. They will have a hearing this evening; they were told to bring along enough money to pay a fine for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and also to cover a charge of disorderly conduct. Their auto was held as security. They will also be required to pay the damages to Dr. Courtright's machine. Altogether this will make a dear Sabbath day's fun.

PANTS TALK.
Kuppenheimer started something when its stylists revolted from the paternity pants foisted on America by English designers.
From the straights and balloon trousers of last year, Bond street went to Oxford bags, in which a man looked like a pair of animated sacks of flour.
Some of the big custom clothes manufacturers followed the British without a murmur, but Kuppenheimer sent a few scouts out to the trade and found the American man would wear shorts and knickers, but never deck himself out like a couple of sailboats.
So Kuppenheimer announced a rebellion, a revolt from English styles in men's fashions and as a result the regulation clothes of the fall will be sensibly straight, with ample stocks of the outlandish state wide trousers in the college towns for the slickhaired shieks who think a man might just as well be dead as dressed conservatively.
More power to the American fashion makers.

When it came to a pinch, we rebelled from British styles in tea and flavored a harbor, and by cracker, we will throw a few trainloads of pants to the wind if they try to press down upon our new narrow hips these masculine monstrosities. Oklahoma City Times.

SUIT TO REMOVE TRUSTEES OF LATE THOS. W. LAWSON

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—(UP.)—Charging unfaithful administration Douglas and Arnold Lawson today brought a bill in equity in superior court here asking for the removal of William A. Burton, of Egypt, and Horace T. Fogg, of Rockland, as trustees of the estate of their father, the late Thos. W. Lawson, once millionaire "copper king."

The Lawson Brothers took this action as administrators of their father's estate. They charge unfaithful administration of the trust fund, waste and dissipation of a large part of the property, and conversion of a part of it to the trustees' own use.

SEEK TREASURE OF ALEXANDER

Archeologists Believe It Can Be Located.

A report sent from Baku says that search has been begun by the Azerbaijan Archeological society for the treasure of Alexander the Great, which is believed to be buried near the village of Andrievka. It is rather a relief that the quest for buried treasure has been shifted to the neighborhood of Baku, and that it is the wealth of Alexander which is sought. Search for the buried treasure of Captain Kidd and that of the Louisiana-Mississippi pirate-patriot, Jean Lafitte, has been carried on so extensively that it is right to give the treasure of Alexander a chance. So much also has been written of the buried treasures of the Incas and of gold in sunken galleons that it is diverting to hear from the region of the Caucasus mountains and the Caspian sea, in old Georgia, which is now the Azerbaijan republic.

Many unsatisfactory results have attended the search for buried treasure, and in the matter of finding the wealth of Alexander one should keep expectation and enthusiasm under control. It is believed that the third king of Macedon, in the thirty-three years of his active life between Pella and Babylon, may have accumulated wealth. In his triumphal travels in Byzantium, Egypt, Persia and other countries he might have gathered treasure. Whether he buried much of it, or any, near the village of Andrievka is the question.

Treasure of Alexander the Great would be double treasure. The gold would be gold worth so much an ounce, but the gold coins, vases and amulets taken from kings, princesses and priests at Thebes and scores of other cities would be worth more than their weight in gold. Lovers of antiques, lovers of things with imperial associations, lovers of things steeped in associations of war, plunder, conquest and assassination would bid against each other.

The dispatch says: "Although there are no precise historical data indicating the existence of such treasure, the archeologists were led to excavate by the statement of an 80-year-old resident of Andrievka, who says he owns an ancient map stolen from a Turkish sultan many years ago showing the spot where the treasure is buried. The old man's story of a stolen map has a reminiscent sound to persons who have been burnt by the buried treasure fever."

The dispatch also says that "It is an established historical fact that Alexander's troops mutinied at one point in the great empire builder's campaign against Persia—2,256 years ago—and local legend has it that he buried all his treasure somewhere on the Caspian littoral to prevent it falling into the hands of the mutineers. The trouble with many local legends of buried treasure is that they cover too much ground, and that it is hard to pin them down to any particular spot."

Coal-Burning Engines Introduced 75 Years Ago

Reading, Pa.—A local historian has dug out the fact that exactly 75 years ago the Reading company, which now is experimenting with the Diesel locomotive with a view to using oil instead of coal to haul its trains, was experimenting with coal to take the place of wood.

Up until the summer of 1850 wood was burned on all the locomotives and the management was looking about for a new fuel. Naturally coal was selected, but building an engine that would burn the stone fuel, as anthracite then was called, was a difficult matter.

During the summer of 1850 F. P. Dimpfel built an engine which was tried on the Reading road between here and Philadelphia, and after making a number of trips was taken off the line and taken to the Hudson railroad. The managers of the road admitted that it had merit, but claimed the inventor's demands were greater than they were willing to pay. The officials were so much impressed with the coal as a fuel that they admitted "that the use of anthracite will not only soon be found possible, but general."

Soon thereafter engines were introduced on the Reading which burned coal exclusively and satisfactorily.

American Wives Wanted by Italian Officials

Rome.—Recently a bill was introduced in the Italian senate to raise the pay of cabinet ministers to $250 a month. At present the salary is about $120, while under secretaries receive less than $20 a week.

Thirty dollars a week is the amount Italy pays Signor de Stefani for administering the national budget of nearly $1,000,000,000 a year and doing it with scrupulous honesty.

The small salaries of cabinet ministers have been serious obstacles to the careers of some of them. Frequently ministers are unable to accept social invitations because they cannot return the hospitality in a worthy manner. Hence it is of great practical value to a minister to have a wife with an independent income. The ideal is to have an "American wife," in Italian thought the equivalent of "millionairess."

A minister with an "American wife" need not worry about the social part of his career. It is said in bitter jest that the first duty of the ambitious Italian diplomat is to go to the tea dances and flirt with the American girls.

PRESIDENTIAL BOOM STARTED

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 18.—(UP.)—"We'll put you in Washington in 1928," yelled a farmer at Governor Al. Smith at the state fair and the cry was taken up by hundreds.

The governor's victory in the New York Democratic primaries when his friend and protege, Senator "Jimmy" Walker, won, the mayoralty nomination has endeared him even further to the voters of the state, the crowd was told by other speakers.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

SUIT TO REMOVE TRUSTEES OF LATE THOS. W. LAWSON

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—(U.P.)—Charging unfaithful administration Douglas and Arnold Lawson today brought a bill in equity in superior court here asking for the removal of William A. Burton, of Egypt, and Horace T. Fogg, of Rockland, as trustees of the estate of their father, the late Thos. W. Lawson, once millionaire "copper king."

The Lawson Brothers took this action as administrators of their father's estate. They charge unfaithful administration of the trust fund, waste and dissipation of a large part of the property, and conversion of a part of it to the trustees' own use.

Steubenville, Sept. 18.—E. J. Company officials say the cause of the wreck has not been determined. Cars are piled up in the tunnel and it will take a day or more to clear it.

SEEK TREASURE OF ALEXANDER

Archeologists Believe It
Can Be Located.

A report sent from Baku says that search has been begun by the Azerbaijan Archeological society for the treasure of Alexander the Great, which is believed to be buried near the village of Andrievka. It is rather a relief that the quest for buried treasure has been shifted to the neighborhood of Baku, and that it is the wealth of Alexander which is sought. Search for the buried treasure of Captain Kidd and that of the Louisiana-Mississippi pirate-patriot, Jean Lafitte, has been carried on so extensively that it is right to give the treasure of Alexander a chance. So much also has been written of the buried treasures of the Incas and of gold in sunken galleons that it is diverting to hear from the region of the Caucasus mountains and the Caspian sea, in old Georgia, which is now the Azerbaijan republic.

Many unsatisfactory results have attended the search for buried treasure, and in the matter of finding the wealth of Alexander one should keep expectation and enthusiasm under control. It is believed that the third king of Macedon, in the thirty-three years of his active life between Pella and Babylon, may have accumulated wealth. In his triumphal travels in Byzantium, Egypt, Persia and other countries he might have gathered treasure. Whether he buried much of it, or any, near the village of Andrievka is the question.

Treasure of Alexander the Great would be double treasure. The gold would be gold worth so much an ounce, but the gold coins, vases and amulets taken from kings, princesses and priests at Thebes and scores of other cities would be worth more than their weight in gold. Lovers of antiques, lovers of things with Imperial associations, lovers of things steeped in associations of war, plunder, conquest and assassination would bid against each other.

The dispatch says: "Although there are no precise historical data indicating the existence of such treasure, the archeologists were led to excavate by the statement of an 80-year-old resident of Andrievka, who says he owns an ancient map stolen from a Turkish sultan many years ago showing the spot where the treasure is buried. The old man's story of a stolen map has a reminiscent sound to persons who have been burnt by the buried treasure fever."

The dispatch also says that "it is an established historical fact that Alexander's troops mutinied at one point in the great empire builder's campaign against Persia—2,256 years ago—and local legend has it that he buried all his treasure somewhere on the Caspian littoral to prevent it falling into the hands of the mutineers. The trouble with many local legends of buried treasure is that they cover too much ground, and that it is hard to pin them down to any particular spot."

Coal-Burning Engines Introduced 75 Years Ago

Reading, Pa.—A local historian has dug out the fact that exactly 75 years ago the Reading company, which now is experimenting with the Diesel locomotive with a view to using oil instead of coal to haul its trains, was experimenting with coal to take the place of wood.

Up until the summer of 1850 wood was burned on all the locomotives and the management was looking about for a new fuel. Naturally coal was selected, but building an engine that would burn the stone fuel, as anthracite then was called, was a difficult matter.

During the summer of 1850 F. P. Dimpfel built an engine which was tried on the Reading road between here and Philadelphia, and after making a number of trips was taken off the line and taken to the Hudson railroad. The managers of the road admitted that it had merit, but claimed the inventor's demands were greater than they were willing to pay. The officials were so much impressed with the coal as a fuel that they admitted "that the use of anthracite will not only soon be found possible, but general."

Soon thereafter engines were introduced on the Reading which burned coal exclusively and satisfactorily.

He was born at Down, Kent, in 1848, and followed to a degree in his father's footsteps but specialized in botany.

He received his education at Trinity college, Cambridge, and St. George's hospital, London, but abandoned the medical training he had received to return to assist his father at Down.

He was honorary fellow of Christ's College and president in 1908 of the British Association.

Disclaiming any desire to "advise" Hylan, the publisher let it be known he believed the mayor should "leave politics to the crooks and get into the decent business world."

Meanwhile, Senator "Jimmy" Walker, successful Democratic candidate has begun the adjustment of his personal affairs on the theory he will be the next mayor of this normally Democratic city. Talk of a third ticket to be backed by Hearst has died down. U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland, mentioned as an independent candidate, said he would support Walker.

"The Freshman" brings forth a greater Harold Lloyd than we have ever known. There is more laughter in it than any picture he has ever produced—but there is something more! "His Greatest Comedy" is a big statement—but it isn't big enough to describe "The Freshman"—for it is more than comedy! Yes, there is fun aplenty—more than he has ever brought before—riotous minutes of humor, situations that thrill like melodrama, and laughter that rocks one's being—but through it all comes the echo from Heart-break House where Love and Romance and Youth's Dreams dwell—and where the Jester of Life looks on and Smiles.

Plumbing Ocean's Depths

The maximum depth at which even the most experienced diver can work is now about 200 feet. Scientists are constantly experimenting on divers' suits and equipment which will make possible operations at a greater depth. There is untold treasure in lost ships and it is hoped that improved apparatus will enable divers to salvage at depths never before attempted.

SIXTEEN MEN INVOLVED IN GRAVE CHARGE

All Said to be Guilty of Contributing to Delinquency of Young Girl.

Four men have been arrested and investigation involves twelve others, all said to be guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a sixteen year old Carroll girl who was brought to juvenile court at Lancaster and whose sensational case has created considerable attention.

The four men who appeared before Judge Snider all plead not guilty. One was a young Carroll man, another a Columbus man, the third a Lancaster man, and the other lives east of Lancaster. All but the first named are married. Three were placed under $500 bond by Judge Snider. The Lancaster man, who was formerly before the juvenile court on a similar delinquency case concerning a Lancaster high school girl was placed under $1,000 bond. Another of the prisoners is said to have just completed a term in the Pickaway county jail.

The other twelve men involved in the investigation live in Carroll, Jefferson, Lithopolis, Winchester and Waterloo.

Mixed Metaphor

Sir Almeric Fitzroy, who was clerk to the English privy council from 1898 to 1923, is writing his "Memoirs" for the London Morning Post. In the first installment he quoted from his diary some incidents that came to his knowledge during an official visit to Queen Victoria at Balmoral in October, 1898. One of these was the prayer of the Scottish minister who officiated at Craithle church and "in the royal presence petitioned the Almighty that 'as the queen became an auld woman she might put on the new man, and in all righteous causes stand before her people like a he-goat upon the mountains.'"

ALLEGED BANDIT VICTIM CHANGES HOLDUP STORY

Columbus, Sept. 19.—Charles Denman, 212 East Maynard Ave., yesterday confessed to Chief of Detectives Shellenbarger that his story that he had been robbed of $35 by thugs was false, but no charge has been placed against him and he is at liberty.

Denman, who said he had been attacked and beaten into unconsciousness by bandits as he was making his rounds as an A. D. T. watchman, said he struck himself over the head with a short length of pipe.

"I wanted some notoriety," he said.

WELL DIGGER

Working In Deep Vein of Quick-Sand.

The glacial period is evident in the hunt for water in sufficient quantity to keep the refrigerating machine of the Wittich confectionery supplied. The driller, James Edgington, had ninety feet of pipe casing in place Friday and was still in quick-sand with no possibility of getting water as the sand backs up in the casing as soon as the drill is pulled therefrom to admit the bailer.

Geologists claim that in some instances quick-sand extends to a great depth, and it is more than likely that this is one of the deep veins that the driller has struck.

Mr. Edgington, an old time driller, says he has gone over 150 feet in this section before he has struck first-class water. He drilled all the wells for the Government at Camp Sherman near Chillicothe.

He has also drilled for oil and gas with his rigging.

The deeper veins of water in this section are absolutely pure for drinking purposes, says Mr. Edgington.

SUIT TO INTERPRET WILL 100 YEARS OLD

Was Made by Wife of Napoleon's Youngest Brother.

Baltimore, Md.—Jerome N. C. Bonaparte of New York city and his wife, Mrs. Blanche Bonaparte, are defendants in a suit filed in a Baltimore court to interpret the will of Betsy Patterson, a Baltimore belle of more than a century ago, who married Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon.

On the court's interpretation of the meaning of certain provisions of the will depends the manner of distribution of 56 ground rents in Baltimore said to represent a value of many thousand dollars.

The suit is a friendly action. Betsy Patterson, daughter of William Patterson, a wealthy Baltimore merchant, and Jerome Bonaparte, youngest brother of Napoleon, then first consul of the French republic, were married in Baltimore Christmas eve, 1803.

The father of the bride had opposed the wedding. It was equally distasteful to Napoleon. He refused to admit the bride of his brother to court circles and finally succeeded in forcing a divorce. Jerome was made king of Westphalia. After living for a time in Europe Betsy Patterson returned to Baltimore.

Former Austrian Princess Engaged to Wed Workman

Vienna.—A romance, started when a workmen's council intervened in behalf of the former Austrian princess, Elizabeth Windischgraetz, will culminate in her marriage to a social democratic member of the Austrian diet, Herr Petzneck.

The council saved the princess from being ejected from her ancestral home, the castle of Schoenbrunn. It was at that time she became acquainted with Herr Petzneck, who proved himself a friend and adviser in regard to the upbringing and education of her children. Both of the principals have been divorced.

The princess is the granddaughter of Emperor Franz Joseph and the only daughter of the ill-fated Crown Prince Rudolph. Her son is now serving an apprenticeship in an automobile factory and a daughter is attending a girls' high school in Vienna, while the princess herself is living in a small flat in the city.
